

Pymble Ladies' College Bequests

A bequest is a gift and can be either named or anonymous. It is contained within a will and specifically reserves part of an estate for a particular beneficiary.

Bequests can be made in a variety of ways to reflect a donor's wishes. They can be defined personal assets such as bonds, property, fixed sums or a percentage of an estate.

Bequests are usually directed to Pymble Ladies' College for use at its discretion. Such unencumbered gifts allow the College the flexibility to use donations in areas of particular need.

Alternatively, bequests can be directed to a specific area of Pymble Ladies' College, such as a particular academic discipline (for example, Science); or to a Co-curricular activity (for example, Drama, sport); or to the Pymble Ladies' College Building Fund.

Bequests can also be made to particular funds set up by the College for a specific purpose such as for scholarships or buildings. Funds such as these qualify as deductible gift recipients for tax purposes and carry significant tax benefits over gifts made to other areas of the College or gifts for use at the College's discretion.
